Some thoughts on today's scripture

Today's Gospel reading from Luke recounts the appearance of Jesus to his disciples after his resurrection, emphasizing the reality of his bodily presence among them. Jesus stands before them, offering peace and inviting them to touch him, to see that he is not a ghost but truly alive. In many ways, the disciples' experience mirrors our own journey of faith. Like them, we may encounter doubts and uncertainties, especially in the face of life's challenges and adversities. Yet, just as Jesus reassured his disciples, he reassures us today that he is with us always, especially in the midst of our doubts and fears.

Nel Vangelo di oggi, tratto dal libro di Luca, assistiamo al meraviglioso incontro tra Gesù risorto e i suoi discepoli. Gesù si manifesta loro, non come un fantasma o un'illusione, ma come una presenza reale e tangibile. Egli offre loro la pace e li incoraggia a contemplare le sue mani e i suoi piedi, a toccare le sue ferite, affinché possano essere testimoni della sua risurrezione. Questo incontro trasforma radicalmente i discepoli, rinvigorisce la loro fede e infonde loro una nuova missione: essere testimoni della risurrezione di Cristo fino agli estremi confini della terra.

isce la loro fede e infonde loro una nuova missione: essere testimoni della risurrezione di Cristo fino agli estremi confini della terra.

Anche noi siamo chiamati a fare nostra questa missione. Come discepoli di Cristo, siamo chiamati a testimoniare la realtà della sua risurrezione attraverso le nostre parole e azioni quotidiane. Possiamo farlo vivendo in modo coerente con il Vangelo, manifestando il suo amore e la sua misericordia agli altri, e portando speranza e consolazione a coloro che incontriamo lungo il nostro cammino.
